

The particular emphasis of the Flo Ware Park renovation has been to address issues of crime and safety. Parks has worked with the Seattle Police Department to plan a park that incorporates Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design (CPTED) strategies. The CPTED strategies include natural surveillance, territoriality, and access control.

The inclusion of an art project honoring local community activist Flo Ware will serve to reinforce a park identity, territoriality, and sense of community ownership. Coyote Junior High staff are currently working with Parks staff to make sure their art components augment natural surveillance and access control. The Coyote Junior High project will of course be held to Parks standards of maintenance, ADA access, and other regulations.

Coyote Junior High has had the recent experience of completing several art projects with Seattle Parks. Based on that experience as well as our current positive working relationship, we believe Coyote Junior High's proposed Flo Ware art project will be completed on time and on budget as well as optimally integrated into the design of the park as a whole.

Questions to think about:

1. What activities and events do you envision happening in the park after it is improved?
2. Remembering the budget constraints, what improvements are most important to you in Flo Ware Park?
